Jaume Plensa: Genus and Species
Through May 2

For the past 20 years, contemporary Spanish sculptor Jaume Plensa has been investigating the intimate interconnection between nature and culture through large-scale sculptures and installations that incorporate light, sound, and text in transparent, often interactive structures, such as the incredible Crown Fountain at Millennium Park, Chicago. Jaume Plensa: Genus and Species highlights nine recently completed, large-scale works chosen by the artist and curator specifically for the spaces at the Nasher Sculpture Center. Installed both indoors and out, this dynamic exhibition will expand understanding of the work of this important, living sculptor and provide crucial context for Plensa's Song of Songs III & IV in the Raymond and Patsy Nasher Collection. The exhibition will also offer opportunities for meaningful collaborations that touch on the myriad, interdisciplinary subjects in Plensa's work: language, philosophy, history, literature, religion, and science.

The Nasher Sculpture Center is located at 2001 Flora Street, Dallas, TX 75201, 214-242-5100. Open Sunday through Saturday, 10am to 5pm, closed on Monday. www.nashersculpturecenter.org

Seizing the New World: Recent Paintings by Yang Jin Long
Through April 18

Seizing the New World presents Yang Jin Long's new paintings from the last two years. Yang moved to the United States from China three years ago. Since his arrival, Yang has been exploring his new surroundings by creating vibrant, provocative and imaginative paintings: Eight pairs of large canvas paintings, one series depicting the Four Seasons and a second series a colorful exploration of bright hues and celebration of good wishes and fortune. A set of smaller paintings of the Chinese Zodiac will be included in the exhibition to commemorate the 2010 Year of the Tiger. Yang's extensive training in traditional Chinese painting gives him great poetical depth in his approach to oil painting. Yang expressed, "At last, I am able to paint with colors and images with no limitation." These paintings show Yang's acute talent and ability to bring together references to Western and Chinese art masterpieces, music, literature, science, and culture.

MUSEUM HOURS: Tuesday-Sunday (10am-5pm); open Thursday until 9pm; closed Monday; Admission is always free. A guided tour of the permanent collection is offered every Thursday at 6:30pm and begins in the lobby.

All the World's a Stage: Celebrating Performance in the Visual Arts
Through February 28; Chilton Gallery II and Focus Gallery I

All the World's a Stage: Celebrating Performance in the Visual Arts showcases a fresh look at the Museum's collections in an interactive installation to commemorate the opening of the Dallas Center for the Performing Arts and the completion of the Dallas Arts District. Nearly 125 works spanning 2,600 years of human creativity, including paintings, sculptures, photography, and objects from around the world, will illustrate how dance, music, and theater performance is an essential human instinct.

Late Nights at the Dallas Museum of Art
The art doesn't go home. Why should you?
February 19

Celebrate the closing of All the World's a Stage and become a member of the Museum for a sneak peek of the new exhibition, The Lens of Impressionism. Be transported to Europe and the time of the impressionists with concerts, tours, a lecture on Monet's Seine at Lavacourt with Dr. Paul Hayes Tucker, and family experiences. Enjoy ballet performances in All the World's a Stage, a screening of Moulin Rouge, open mic, and DJs in the galleries.

Performance/Art
Through March 21; Barrel Vault and Hanley, Lamont, Rachofsky, and Stoffel Galleries

In celebration of the opening of the Dallas Center for the Performing Arts, the DMA organized an exhibition of the work of five international and American artists who have used the forms and ideas surrounding performance, including opera and theater works, as starting points for paintings, sculpture, films, and photographs. Visit www.dm-art.org for a list of collections.

The Lens of Impressionism: Photography and Painting Along the Normandy Coast, 1850-1874

February 21-May 23; Chilton Gallery I

The Lens of Impressionism is an exploration of Impressionist painting's response to early photography within the context of a single geographic locale that was intensely explored by painters and photographers in the second half of the 19th century, the coast of Normandy. The convergence of social, artistic, technological and commercial forces dramatically transformed the course of photography and painting, ultimately making a profound impact on the history of early Impressionism. Among the artists represented here are Claude Monet, Edouard Manet, and Gustave Courbet, and photographers Gustav Le Gray, Henri Le Secq, and Louis-Alphonse Davanne.
